VERY STORMY SESSION OF PARLIAMENT

Government Defeated On Censorship Question.

"REDS" ACTIVE

New Party Had Great Influence in Defeating Govt.

One of the stormiest sessions of the Mock Parliament culminated last night in the defeat of His Majesty's Government on the motion to abolish Motion Picture Censorship. The Prime Minister announced that he would tender his resignation immediately, and with it goes that of his party.

The session was marked by the appearance of the "Revolutionary Party", who occupied the cross benches and in reality outnumbered both government and opposition, many members of these two parties evidently having been "paired".

At 8.15 p.m., the speaker, R. L. Calder, K.C., took the chair and announced the business of the day. Jones, leader of the Revolutionaries immediately moved a vote of censure on the government, wilfully neglecting the condition of McGill students, and for enacting Chinese and Japanese immigrant legislation when unemployment and student conditions were in the present condition. Amaron seconded the motion, stating that legislation should be by and from the people and that the needs of the students of McGill and R.V.C. should no longer be neglected.

Peterson, the Prime Minister then rose to preface his remarks by referring to the deep loss felt by the whole British Empire and the world at large in the death of Sir Ernest Shackleton. He then turned his attention to the Revolutionists and stated that they had forgotten the fact that the Parliament was the Mock Parliament of Canada and not that of McGill University and that therefore legislation expressly for McGill students was not in order. Jones rose several times to a point of order during Peterson's speech, in fact the whole session was marked by interruptions, due no doubt to the tense feeling prevailing.

Wilkes, of the opposition, then denounced the Revolutionary party as the creation of a section of the public whose object was to hold the whole Parliament in derision.

He was followed by Dillon, opposition leader, who reiterated the fact that he had had no intimation of the platform and policy of the new party and wished these expressly stated. The debate grew very heated at this period, speakers on all three sides of the house trying with one another in forcefulness of language. This part of the debate was brought to a close by the speaker who pointed out that (Continued on Page 2.)

BASKETBALL GAME WITH QUEEN'S TEAM

McGill Quintette Meets Tricolor Five This Afternoon.

GAME AT 2.30 P.M.

Rooters Out In Force To Cheer Red and White to Initial Victory.

The Basketball team will be the first of the college teams to stage an intercollegiate contest before the students of McGill since the opening of the new term. The game with Queens at the Highlanders' Armoury this afternoon will be the initial one for the team on their own floor and they hope to start off with a victory.

As a matter of fact it is necessary that McGill should win this afternoon if they hope to remain in the running for the intercollegiate championship. The Queens team is always a hard one to defeat in their own gymnasium and, if they succeed in winning today they will not give in easily in the return game.

McGill has a strong team, however, and they expect to carry off the game handily this afternoon.

The forward line is especially strong this season and it is in this department that they hope to outclass the tricolor outfit. Hay is playing at his best this season and can find the basket quite regularly, while Manson is getting to be the man really feared by the other teams. He is tall and can curl the ball around the rim of the basket with monotonous regularity at times.

The weakness in the defence has been counteracted by the mode of play adopted for the team and the vulnerable points made strong. The game against Varsity last week showed the coach faults that could not be discovered in weeks of practice and he was quick to remedy them. This Queens team is not one to go down to defeat easily and they have come into town with the impression that they are going to win.

The Highlanders' Armoury, on Bleury street, is the best place in the city for the accommodation of spectators at a basketball game and every preparation has been made for a record crowd this afternoon. The game starts at 2.30 o'clock sharp and it is important that the spectators should be in their seats before that time. The rooters will all be on hand for the event and will be led in the usual yells and songs during the progress of the game.

A win for the basketball team in the afternoon has generally presaged a win for the hockey team in the evening and it is necessary that every McGill man and woman should get out and cheer on the Red and White quintette today.

LECTURE ON SUBJECT OF LIFE ORIGIN

Interesting Topic Subject Of Address by Dr. Whitby

CHEMICAL SOCIETY

Photo-Synthesis and the Origin of Life.

A meeting of the Chemical Society was held at 5 P.M., yesterday Feb. 3rd in the Chemical and Mining Building. After the minutes had been read by the secretary, an address was delivered by Dr. G. S. Whitby on the subject of "Photo-Synthesis and the Origin of Life."

In opening his address the speaker remarked upon the general interest of the topic, and the rapid advance which science had made in this field during the past decade, since in 1912 it was made the subject of a paper read before the Royal Society. Before explaining the conclusions to which experiments in photo-synthesis had led, Dr. Whitby gave a brief outline of earlier ideas as to the origin of life upon earth. The speaker mentioned that it was significant of the intellectual spirit of the age, that in preparing his notes he had not thought at all of life as resulting from a single creative act. An early theory, but one which can not now be maintained, was that of spontaneous creation. The theory that life was imported to this planet from the outer universe, was supported by the Lord Kelvin in 1871 who thought that Pasteur's experiments proved that life could not originate upon earth. This however does not explain how life arose. A more plausible theory is that in some earlier geological period, conditions of temperature and atmospheric pressure were favorable to the reactions from which life was produced. Great electrical discharges gave rise to ammonia and hydrocarbons which combine to form ultra-microscopic organisms. This theory, however, has not been perfected, and is moreover out of harmony with the principle of uniformity which states that in science we must explain the past by the present. This assumes that life could arise in the same way to-day.

In these theories of the past, attention has been concentrated upon the form in which life might arise, rather than in the energy concerned. The fundamental questions are, first, what is the source of this energy, and secondly, how is it obtained? The elements carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen are the chief bearers of energy which can be brought to the task of the origin of micro-organisms. The unique fitness for this of the compounds of these elements, water and carbon dioxide are shown by their thermal, solvent, and ionic properties. Life depends upon the fundamental reduction of these compounds. This can be brought about by sunlight, while other (Continued on Page 4.)

THE GAMES.
The usual winter season of intercollegiate contests starts today with the games of basketball and hockey against the teams representative of Queen's University. All of the teams taking part in the games this afternoon and to-night have suffered defeats at the hands of the Toronto University teams but they are all determined to keep fighting until they are altogether left behind in the league race.
The McGill teams feel that they are superior to their opponents in the games today but they will have to prove their aspirations. The Queens' teams, although not always successful in winning the championships of the league, have never been known to be easy to defeat and have very often surprised the other colleges by winning at the most unexpected times. McGill will not go into the games overconfident but they certainly will start determined to win.

POOR SPORTS.
The taking of books placed on the reference shelves of the Library is a matter which should be severely dealt with. Both last year and this reference books have been found missing, having evidently been taken without permission. It is inconceivable that any student should be so depraved that he would stoop to such means as theft in order to acquire knowledge at the direct expense of his fellow students.

It is at their direct expense for access is thereby denied to the books which were placed on the shelves for common use. It is very disconcerting to find, on going to the library to study, that a student in the same year has pilfered the shelves. It is almost unbelievable that such practices should go on in a University. But so they do.
Not only is it inconvenient to the student in not having the books, but he is at once branded as part of the class that was known to have taken the books. He is compelled to suffer with the guilty in being deprived of the use of the reference shelves altogether. Already books have been withdrawn from the shelves on this account, making access to them a much more tedious process.
The practice of taking reference books is one that should be stopped. How to do so is another matter. However, if those who use the reference shelves will keep their eyes open the guilty ones may be discovered.
Those who have books in their possession now, out of due fairness to the rest of the students, should see to it that they are returned immediately. It is poor sportsmanship to play the hog with reference books, not knowing or caring how the rest of the class will carry on without them.

To the Editor, McGill Daily.
Dear Sir:—
I would like to bring to your notice a mistake in the write up of the B. W. & F. eliminations. In the 110 lbs. wrestling final, C. D. Andrews, Sci. II, was the victor, and not myself, as was reported.
"All honour to him to whom honour is due."
Trusting that this error will be rectified.

The Editor, McGill Daily.
Dear Sir:—
Referring to Internationalists letter that appeared in your column a few days ago, I would say that a club consisting of every nationality of people would be a great thing for a college such as McGill. As has often been said, among the students of to-day are most of the future leaders of the world's affairs. Most of the leading politicians of to-morrow are today students. Admitting this, would not a club with world wide views, composed of many people of different countries, tend to promote good will and better understanding between these nationalities. It would have the effect of making them look upon each others point of view intelligently. Would not this be a great thing in the future, to have the leaders of the nations know and understand each other? It would be a step towards greater international friendship, and might even help to abolish wars if this is a possibility.
I see that Internationalists mentions that there is a Cosmopolitan club in existence now. I am ashamed to say I know little of it. Perhaps this club is one such as I have spoken of, comprising every nationality. If so, I hardly see the need of another similar to it, under the name of International. The purpose accomplished would be the same in both clubs. If on the other hand, this club is not one of international interest. Then I most heartily and enthusiastically pledge my support to this new International club. Its establishment is, I think possible. It would be a very popular club causing wide vision and broad mindedness among the students.

THE RAVING.
(With apologies to E. A. Poe)
Once upon an evening dreary
(Twas the night before exams.)
While I pondered, weak and weary
(In the last attempt to cram)
Suddenly there came a rapping
As of some one gently tapping,
Tapping at my chamber door.
"What Ho!" I cried in perturbation.
Thoughts of Hank, the Dean
(I had cuts and cuts galore!)
"Come!" I shrieked in consternation,
Flung it wide with trepidation!
God-Zooks! Saw the house-cat scarpin' in' at my chamber door!
Only this,—and nothing more!

opposition, the Revolutionists taking no part in the debate other than rising to frequent points of order as to the length of time a member was allowed.
They evidently were only waiting for a division to cast their weight, undoubtedly overpowering, against the government. After several members had spoken the leader of the government rose to conclude the case for the motion. He said that the principles of liberalism which were the principles of his party were those of liberty and that the freedom to appreciate the art in nature and to cultivate the aesthetic sense must be allowed to flourish. In concluding he stated that the motion was a government one and that the government would stand or fall on the outcome of the vote.
The leader of the opposition announced that his party were unalterably opposed to the motion and would cast their vote against it.
The speaker then called for a vote. The government members supported the motion, but the thundering "no" that came from opposition and cross benches left no doubt as to the opinion of the house. The Prime Minister then announced his immediate resignation and the speaker declared the debate adjourned. Thus terminated a most stormy scene. The influence of the cross bench Revolutionists, although they took only a small part in the debate was undoubtedly the big thing of the evening, and further startling developments may be expected very shortly.

STUDENTS TO TOUR EUROPE IN SUMMER

Visit Includes Either England, France, Italy or Norway.
The following circular letter was received by the secretary of the Graduate Society, and may prove of interest to some of the Undergraduates. Unfortunately there was a misprint where the price of the tour should have been, and so it is impossible to state that.
A group of four International Students' Tours to foreign countries, membership in which is open to students and instructors in American colleges and universities, has been organized for the summer of 1922 under the auspices of the Institute of International Education. Each of the tours, in addition to being under the general sponsorship of the Institute, is also under the special auspices of the appropriate international society in this country, as follows:
Students' Tour to Great Britain:—The English-Speaking Union.
Students' tour to France:—Federation of L'Alliance Francaise.
Students' tour to Italy:—The Italy America Society.
Students' tour to the Scandinavian Countries:—The American-Scandinavian Foundation.

The International Students' Tours have been established as a non-commercial undertaking for the purpose of enabling American college students to travel in foreign countries at the lowest possible cost, under capable guidance and instruction, under dignified auspices, and under conditions which permit a full realization of the value of such an interchange of visits from the point of view of international relations.
The members of all four of the Students' Tour will sail from New York on July 1st, 1922, on the Cunarder "Saxonia", a single-class liner of 14,300 tons, which has been especially reserved to handle the movement of the International Students' Tours on both the eastbound and the return voyages. She will land the members of the British tour at Plymouth, those of the French and Italian tours at Cherbourg, and those of the Scandinavian tour at Hamburg. For the return trip, all four of the groups will embark at Cherbourg on August 22nd, 1922.

COMMERCIAL SOCIETY.
On Wednesday Feb. 15th at 8 P.M., in the Lecture Theatre of the Chemistry Building Dr. Fowle will give an informal talk (to the Commercial Society, etc.) on trade with South America. Dr. Fowle has five sets of lantern slides which are well worth seeing.

QUEEN'S GAME PROMISES TO BE THRILLER

Both Hockey Sextettes Expect Victory.

ARENA 8.15 P.M.

All McGill Regulars Will Be Out.

The hockey game against the Queens team this evening promises to be the most exciting contest presented to the college fans this winter. The team from Kingston is coming to the city determined to defeat the representatives of the Red and White and they will give a thorough battle before they admit that they are beaten.

Coach Frank Shaughnessy has his squad of men lined-up for the game and they are all itching to hear the initial blow of the whistle signalling the fact that they are free to start the offensive against the tricolor players. The McGill men feel that they are just about due to break into the winning column of the intercollegiate league standing and they will give the visitors a speedy pace to follow throughout the full sixty minutes of the play.

The full team will be out to represent the university and they are all reported to be in the best of condition. Flin Flanagan has fully recovered from the accident to his shoulder and will be able to drive the rubber at the puck in the approved style. Last Saturday he sent three goals into the Varsity net although his right arm was practically useless, so that he should make an enviable record this week.

"Boo" Anderson will occupy his usual position at centre where he can be depended to pick the puck out just a little oftener than his opponent and where his uncanny backchecking ability can be used to the best advantage. On the left wing, Matty Dineen will perform. A veteran of many intercollegiate hockey campaigns he has played almost every position on the team and can be relied upon to do his best wherever he is placed.

McGerrigle and Dempsey are slated to occupy the defence positions for the game. Breaking into senior company for the first time this year they have shown senior ability throughout and are a few of the real finds of the season. Dempsey is able to block the best of the forwards on the opposing teams, while McGerrigle gets off some pretty rushes at times.

The return of Pat Kelly to the senior team will be watched with interest by many of the students who were interested in the McGill team several years ago. Kelly was one of the best players of the team when it starred in the City league years ago but the war put a stop to his activities and he did not resume the pastime with the same enthusiasm on his return to college. This year, however, he has made a definite effort to get in shape for the team and may show some hockey to the fans yet. Lynch, the other mentioned by the coach for the game to-night, has already shown his worth. Although he is much smaller than the average player in the league he has done admirably in the opening games and can be depended upon to do his best at all times.

The nets will be guarded as usual by Captain Walter Stenson. Stenson has held his position regularly ever since his first appearance on the team and has never failed to give a brilliant exhibition in the nets. He has been playing at the top of his form this year and will not let many easy ones get past him.

The game is scheduled to start at 8.15 o'clock this evening and the rooters, led by Teddies' Thompson and Joe Wain will be in their places long before the team comes on the ice to keep the time passing quickly by their songs and yells. Today should be a big day for the college teams and the rooters will be on hand on every occasion to celebrate.

The probable teams tonight:—

PEPYS AT MCGILL

Friday, Feb. 3rd. Home once again in my lodging-house on Durocher Street after a weary day of tramping about the harbour-front, and very glad to spend all day reclining on my truckle-bed in sore anguish of body and mind and not caring neither even to venture out for the Moche Parliament, as my seat has been declared forfeit. So dispirited now that I care not what I do, and find not even any pleasure in the drinking of ale. I must bethink me to try stronger spirits.

SKI AND SNOWSHOE EVENTS ON CAMPUS

Keen Competition For Place On College Team.

The skiing and snowshoe events were run off at five o'clock yesterday on the Campus. The first was the 150 yard ski race in which there was 3 heats of 5 men each, of whom the two first were entered in the finals. All heats were very keenly contested and close finishes were in order. In the first Macklaier forged ahead and won by a slight margin, while Starke was coming along in fine style and looked a sure second. Glen however who was running third, put up a snappy spurt with the result that he caught up with Starke and the two crossed the line together, so that both took part in the final. In the second heat Lane came in first with Elliot close behind him, and the third man Desbarats but a few inches in the rear; this was the closest race. The last heat was won by Foss, who had worked up a slight lead over Copeland, the second to finish. To give the skiers an opportunity to rest, the 150 yard snowshoe race was called next, the 8 or 9 competitors being in the one event. This was also hard fought and fast, and was won by Bernstein, with Anderson second and Davis third. After this came the final of the ski dashes and ended as follows, first Foss, second Lane, third Macklaier, with very little separating them. Since this was an Inter-faculty race, Foss secured 5 points for Science; Lane, 3 for Arts; and Macklaier 1 for Law. Another result is that Foss and Lane have made the Inter-collegiate team. Then the snowshoers puffed through a half a mile, which, considering the conditions was very fast. This event was won by Norm Egerton who was not pushed in any way. Spink finishing second, with Davis third. Egerton maintained his lead throughout and appeared in good condition. Carter was unfortunate enough to fall near the start and unable to catch up. The cross country ski run will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock starting from the Park Slide and finishing on the Campus. Full instructions will be given at the start.

ARMY OF ROOTERS FOR QUEEN'S GAME

Tickets On Sale At Union Till Noon.

At last the day has come, as it always will if you wait long enough, when, as Pepys would say, our doughty team will engage in a tussle at hockey with the players from the Kingston townie. By the way poor old Pepys was in buying a rooter's ticket to-day, and on being accosted by a fellow-student hurriedly departed with the precious paste-board clutched in his ever-ready lunch-hocks. And if any rooter's have forgotten their tickets they will have a chance to buy them at the Union up till 12 o'clock today, 55 cents.

Now for the method of procedure: the clan will rally at the corner of Mount Royal Avenue and Park Avenue and leaving there at 7.30 will hike to the Arena.

As usual the East end of the rink has been held for the rooters and to give the team any kind of dignified support it should be filled to overflowing.

The itinerary includes many of the great cities of ancient and modern Italy—Rome, Milan, Genoa, Naples, and its environs, Pompeii, the hill town of Perugia, Florence, Pisa, Padua, and Venice. It provides for a three-day sojourn in the Italian Lakes, and for a trip through the battlefields in the Dolomites, where the Italian armies performed their astounding feats of military engineering during the great war. It includes the passion Play at Oberammergau, and brief visits to Paris, Lausanne, Munich, and Lucerne, on the way from Cherbourg to the Italian frontier or on the return.

Students' Tour to the Scandinavian Countries.

The itinerary of the Students' Tour to the Scandinavian Countries provides for visits to the three capital cities, Copenhagen, Christiania, and Stockholm, to the principal universities of the North, and to several other towns of great historical interest or present commercial importance. It includes the amazing journey by rail across the Norwegian plateau from Christiania to Bergen, and a ten-day trip through the Norse fjords, travelling northwards as far as Trondhjem, sometimes by carriage along daring mountain roads, sometimes by steamer into the heart of the mountain country upon narrow waters whose rock sides rise sheer from the level of the sea. From Trondhjem the group travels southward through Sweden, traverses the Swedish Lake District, and crosses the Baltic to the Continent for brief stays in Berlin, Cologne, and Paris, before going to Cherbourg for the return voyage.

McGill is out to win to-night and you'll be there? All right.

BOSOM BEGGARS.

Have you ever yielded to the impulse to give a "loan" or a "helping hand" to some one who has come to your office with a hard-luck story? If you have, this may be no news to you. But to a certain man in New York it was news. He had heard of bosom friends. He had never known there were such people as bosom beggars—beggars who were intimate with one another, chummy, confiding.

Some one came into this man's office about a year ago. He told him a very long and elaborate story. He was a very superior kind of beggar. They, too, have their class distinctions! The superior beggar told the man of a mutual relationship of theirs; his story made them both cousins, almost reunited cousins. And he went out with a "small loan" in his pocket.

A few weeks later another "superior beggar" came to this man's office. He had been asked, so he said, to look him up by his aunt who lived West; he had always been meaning to and had put it off, and now—he had gotten in with some wild company—and he went out with a small loan in his pocket.

So it continued. With the most elaborate of excuses the different "superior beggars" would come to see this man. Never did the same one come twice. Always it was a new beggar, always with a story which somehow linked him with the man of whom he was soon to ask for a loan.

Fourteen different beggars came—decent intervals between their visits.

Now the man was not a fool as you might suspect. For the first two or three times the stories genuinely touched him, figuratively as well as literally.

Then he became interested. It was quite unusual to think that these men worked together; tipped each other off to the "suckers," worked in numbers, returning each other's hospitality.

Finally the man had tested it long enough. He knew all he wanted to know about bosom beggars and their system with each other; besides he wanted more than human interest for his money.

The fifteen beggar was in his office. At the conclusion of his story the man spoke:

"Yes, I'll give you a loan. But if I do, I don't want to see one of your friends in here again. I've had fifteen of you, and I see through your system. That's all. Mind you, never another one of you do I want to see."

It has been seven months now. Not a single loan seeker has come to his office.

Soul-Satisfying—"How did you like that cigar I gave you, old man? For two hundred hands off that brand they give you a gramophone!"

"You don't say! If I smoked two hundred of those cigars I wouldn't want a gramophone; I'd want a harp."

INFORMAL DANCE FOR NEXT FRIDAY

Preparations Almost Completed To Make It a Success.

Once again McGill dance artists will have an opportunity to indulge the prevailing passion for terpsichore at the next Informal Dance to be held on Friday, February 10th. The dance will be held in the Ball Room of the Union, which, besides being the centre of the University, has a floor unsurpassed by any in the city.

The Informals have become exceedingly popular of late and the Committee is preparing for a record turnout on Friday. The music will be supplied by the McGill Dance Orchestra, which needs no introduction to the students, judging from the favourable comments heard on their performance at previous dances. All the music sellers have been searched for the latest hits in fox trots and the dreamy "moonlight waltz" will also have its place.

No one need fear that this Informal will not be up to the standard as those in charge are doing everything possible to put it over with a bang. Only a few tickets are left—the "early birds" have been at work and any who wish to attend the Dance and who have not already procured their tickets had better hurry themselves unto the Union porter at once.

PSYCHOLOGY IN GAMES.

"More than one basketball game has been lost because the colors worn by a team were not adequately apprehended in indirect vision. Batsmen hit or miss a ball because they do or do not know the conditions of space perception and perception of movement. Football teams win or lose games because their coaches do not know emotions and the conditions under which they arise."

Thus Dr. C. R. Griffith of the department of psychology states the mental aspects of athletic performance that interest the psychologist.

"It is a matter of every day opinion that successful achievement in athletics demands highest mental and physical qualities. Up to this time, however, physical qualities have received far more attention than the mental. For the psychologist, problems of direct and indirect vision, audition, auditory discrimination and sound localization, memory, association, habit, instinct, emotion, thought and reaction are important."

None is more important than selection of men in Dr. Griffith's opinion. A coach in any branch of athletics experiences nothing more disheartening than to spend three-fourths of his time upon men who finally cannot be used, he declares. Here the psychologist can and does devise tests designed to measure the ability involved in all cases of athletic performance.

Taking football as an example, Dr. Griffith declares it absolutely necessary to the coach to know how long it takes his men to charge after the ball has been snapped. In this situation, a few thousandths of a second may make the whole difference between a good and bad linesman.

CONSULT THE ORACLE

Dear Oracle:

I am a recent graduate of High School, and a very recent graduate of McGill University. I am leaving the city for other parts next week. Having several dollars of caution money left, I must spend it before papa hears the news. Where shall I go to drown my sorrows?

Science '25.

Answer: Go the Partial The Damsant on Saturday. Five dollars worth of fun for a mere seventy-five cents.

Dear Oracle:

I find myself attracted by the posters referring to a certain The Damsant at the Royal Victoria College. As I find great difficulty in keeping my feet from becoming entangled while dancing, and do not drink tea, do you think it advisable that I should go?

Tea-Totaller.

Answer:—Go by all means! There will be other food stuffs, and you will find that even you can dance. Reason? The McGill Dance Orchestra.

Dear Oracle:

I am very fond of a certain young lady, but she spurns me. I cannot eat at least, not more than three or four times a day—I cannot sleep, except in lectures. My heart is broken. What can I do to gain her affection?

I. Swan.

Answer: Take her to the Partial The Damsant, and all will be well.

AT THE THEATRES

ORPHEUM.

A welcome of unfeigned pleasure has been given the Orpheum Players who opened the Orpheum Theatre and have been giving an excellent performance of "The Storm." The piece was well chosen and gave the public a fine chance to see of what material the new stock company was composed. Their versatility is evidenced by next week's selection one of the most successful all-fun comedies of the day, "Twin Beds," in which Mr. and Mrs. Carter deHaven made the hit of their career. The question is, often asked when amusements are under discussion, "why does 'Twin Beds' continue on the top wave of popularity and drawing power when dozen of similar attractions flourish for a brief space and then disappear?" The answer is plain enough. "Twin Beds" is all that is claimed for it and more. Motif, situations and dialogue blend into a perfect whole to complete the story. Unlike the host of imitations which have sprung into existence of late years, "Twin Beds" is a true reflex of everyday apartment life in any big city. Similar happenings and experiences are just as common today as they were when it was first presented. For this reason "Twin Beds" never grows stale. Each character is drawn from life. The young husband, weary of club life, marries and settles down to quiet domesticity. All right for the young husband happily engaged during the day with business, but what about the light-minded young wife, alone in the gorgeous apartment during the day, eager to see a little of social life and its gaieties? What of her unconscious flirtations and the train of consequences that causes three married couples to flee from each other and the big apartment house, only to bring them together under the same roof in another part of the city? To those who have seen this comedy masterpiece by Salisbury Field and Margaret Mayo there are new sensations of light to be explored. To those who have not seen it an evening of unalloyed pleasure is in store. Mr. David Herblin and Miss Edna Preston fit into the parts played by Mr. and Mrs. Carter de Haven as though they were made for them and the rest of the company will be seen at their best. "Twin Beds" will be played at the Orpheum all next week.

PRINCESS.

Daphne Pollard, "The Idol of London Music Halls" who scored such a complete success at the Princess Theatre this week by attracting capacity houses at each performance has been retained for another week, commencing Sunday matinee and twice daily thereafter will again be seen and heard in song and fun hits from her English Revues. Miss Pollard's engagement in Montreal has been phenomenal to such a degree that the Management was successful in having bookings re-arranged to enable an extended engagement in order to satisfy the great demand for seats and allow the great number of theatrical going public an opportunity of seeing England's best-loved Star before her departure from this Country. The Metropolitan reviewers, departing from their usual role of hating vaudeville criticisms from their dramatic columns, write in extravagant phrases of Miss Pollard's efforts, agreeing in the general verdict that she contributes to this season's new vaudeville one of the cheeriest, most laughable half-hour entertainments to found anywhere in the present day theatre.

As a special added attraction on the programme, Edith Taliaferro, whose professional career has been brief but spectacular, brief because of her years and spectacular because of the numerous 'high spots' contained therein. Miss Taliaferro, like her sister Mabel, at one time was a very famous child actress. Her debut was made with James A. Herne in "Shore Acres," followed by juvenile parts in various companies and such as Olga Nethersole, Melbourne McDougall, Clara Bloodgood, Blanche Walsh and Ezra Kendall. Miss Taliaferro is probably best known as Rebecca in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," in which part she immediately established herself not only an actress of ability but one of wonderfully creative skill. Recently she was the star of "Mother Carey's Chickens," then in "Please Get Married." This season Miss Taliaferro starred in a musical comedy called, "Kissing Time" and now she is in vaudeville with a little production called, "Under the Same Old Moon," described as a love tale of three continents, written by that master of travesty Kenneth Webb, with musical setting by Roy Webb.

Few vaudeville artists can claim greater popularity over a lengthy period of service than Kate Elmore and Sam Williams, who also are to be among the feature offerings of the bill. They have adopted a style of entertainment exclusively their own, broad travesty, clean-cut comedy and bits of song being formed into a combination that makes their offering a riot of laughter from start to finish, which they call, "Wanted A Cook."

Among the other attractive features will be Irving and Jack Kaufman, two of the best known phonograph singers, who have been seldom soon but are often heard in millions of homes. They have been under contract for the past year making records, but have now turned to vaudeville, and have been meeting with marked success every-

It is well known however that matter is continually changing from simple to more complex, from electron to atom, molecule to colloids.

At one stage inorganic colloids are produced which absorb light energy to bring about the fundamental reduction.

It was found that when carbon dioxide was bubbled through radium hydroxide or iron hydroxide and exposed to sunlight that organic formaldehyde was produced. E. C. Bailey showed that this reaction can be brought about in the absence of the hydroxide by using a violet ray which has a shorter wave-length than sunlight. But if another class of catalyst of which chlorophyll, the fundamental life fluid of plants is an example is made use of, sunlight will give the desired effect. These catalysts are known as photo-catalysts, and their use in these experiments is designated photo-synthesis.

Upon conclusion of his address, a vote of thanks was tendered to Dr. Whitby, and the meeting then broke up.

THE SHEIK

Ahmed El Sherif is Sheik of the Senussi, the most interesting and important sect of the Moslem world. It was founded in the forties of the last century by Mohammed ben Senussi, and now has probably twenty millions of followers, mostly in the territory south of the Mediterranean, reaching well into the black belt.

Along with religious training, the people are taught how to make their way under desert conditions. There is no doubt that the sect has raised enormously the moral and material status of the people who have accepted its doctrines. There are no oil wells or gold mines or rich territories in the regions occupied by the sect. The Senussi contend that they should be permitted to lead their own lives. The capital, Kufra, is several hundred miles south of the Mediterranean deep in the desert and well protected by a wide waterless zone. When the Italians began to seal up the Mediterranean waterfront that the Senussi had used, Sheik Ahmed moved from his present capital to a former capital, Jerboah, about two weeks by caravan south of the Mediterranean and the same distance west of Cairo. While he was fighting in the Italians the great war started, and he became involved against the Allies.

An important function in the installation of a Sultan at Constantinople is the buckling on of the sword of Osman. Feeling that the prestige of his position was somewhat dim in the eyes of the Moslem world, the present Sultan, when about to be installed, thought it would enhance this prestige if he could induce Sheik Ahmed to be present and buckle on the sword. Although the war was on, communication was effected with the Sheik. He replied that he would come, so a submarine was sent out of Constantinople underneath the allied fleets to Cyrenaica. Then Ahmed worked his way up to the shore, entered the submarine, was brought to Constantinople, and performed the ceremony. The war came to an end soon afterward. The Allies have prevented the Sheik from returning to his people, and he is now an exile in Anatolia.

DOCTOR CARLESS HOLDS CLINIC YESTERDAY

The Fifth Year Medical Students enjoyed a most instructive clinic given yesterday afternoon at the Montreal General Hospital by Dr. A. R. Carless, C.M.G., F.R.C.S. of London, Eng. Dr. Carless, who is widely known in the medical profession, was a guest at the Medical Dinner on Thursday evening.

The University of Michigan plans to build a campus theatre to cost approximately $40,000. It is the intention of the theatre committee to have a building to house all campus productions and give Michigan predominance in educational dramatic work. Michigan will be the first university in the country to build a large modern theatre of this kind.
